Description of Ghent University Hospital

The University Hospital is a 1,200 bed hospital and employs more than 4,000 workers.

The urology department consists of an outpatient clinic and a urology ward for adults and a ward for children. Urology has daily operating schedules in the central operating rooms.

The whole range of urological care is provided at best quality levels. The hospital employs 4 professors in urology, and acts as a training centre for 3 urologists. The specific fields of interest of the professors are: urethra surgery, prostate and bladder cancer, incontinence, fertility, and specialised pediatric urology.

If you visit our hospital, we can offer you a general programme, where you can visit the different services, we can offer you a programme focused on a specific group of patients, or focused on a specific pathology.

Most of the nursing staff speak Dutch (naturally) but are also fluent in French and English. A few of them also speak German.

As our hospital is a training centre for students in nursing, we have a tradition in mentoring new people. You're always welcome.
